Nominations are being sought to honor the legacy and work of Annemarie Roeper, co-founder of the National Association of Gifted Children Global Awareness Network.

Annemarie’s life and work were dedicated to responding to the concerns of the gifted and talented and about the future of the world in which they live by giving them opportunities to explore different cultures and understand global interdependence.

The Annemarie Roeper Global Awareness Award recognizes one individual and one group (organization, or institution) whose work is similarly dedicated. Any NAGC member may submit a self-nomination or on behalf of another individual or organization.

The nominees’ work must exemplify at least one of the following criteria:

- Prepares gifted learners for an increasingly global world by supporting them as emerging leaders, creators, and peacemakers.
- Develops opportunities for gifted learners to grow personally, act internationally, become stewards of resources, and to appreciate and nurture diversity.
- Provides strategies for gifted individuals to develop intellectual capacity for critical and creative thinking based in understanding the perspectives of others, applying empathy, dealing compassionately, seeking cooperation through consensus, developing civility, citizenship, and by supporting gifted individuals to be contributing members of a global family.
- Equips gifted children with a stronger sense of “Self” that allows them to reach higher levels of spiritual, social and intellectual development to impact an interconnected and synergistic world.
- Helps students understand, learn, and develop a global perspective that accommodates cultural diversity, and recognizes the interdependence among all people, the importance of conserving natural resources, and of promoting positive social action around the world.
