Lynne Henwood, Special Schools and Programs Network Chair
Head of School, FlexSchool, NY

Network Vision Statement
As the Head of School for FlexSchool, a school designed to meet the needs of gifted and twice-exceptional learners, I embrace the opportunity to implement innovative and/or experimental services for the benefit of our unique population of students. Traditional schools may be limited in their ability to meet the diverse needs of gifted children. A variety of non-traditional, out-of-the-box programs are essential if we are to engage these students in authentic, meaningful learning. As chair of NAGC’s Special Schools and Programs Network, I will utilize my spirit of adventure and love for creative teaching and learning to promote this type of programming. The body of knowledge derived from many years of research and study provides valuable insights into our field, but much is yet to be uncovered. This network’s commitment to exploring new programs and sharing strategies and results with the community at large will benefit gifted students everywhere.
