Kristen K. Seward, Ph.D., Curriculum Studies Network Chair Elect
Clinical Assistant Professor and Associate Director of the Gifted Education Research and Resource Institute, Purdue University

Network Vision Statement
The Curriculum Studies Network is the hitch pin for the important work of all networks in NAGC. Curriculum provides the bridge from theory to practice and from professional educators and researchers to learners with gifts and talents.

To accomplish this, network leadership must be intentional about inviting other networks to partner with us at the intersections of our work. Opportunities within NAGC and at our annual conference exist, and we may find or create others throughout the year, including curriculum-focused sessions at other state and national conferences, such as Model Schools, Council for Exceptional Children, and ASCD Conference of Teaching Excellence. Research, education, and advocacy beyond NAGC is vital to our mission to promote standards and related research for curriculum development and to serve gifted students from diverse backgrounds through rich, high-quality curriculum delivered in self-contained or academically diverse contexts.